SOCIETY

WITH St. Patrick's day as a good reason, if you must have one, there will be some entertaining today, more or less formal as the occasion warrants. Green soups and sweets will supplement substantial, in which shades of emerald cannot be as easily employed, and the hospitality arranged under the patronage of Ireland's saint ought to be and will be of the most cheerful brand. The next saint on the calendar whose day is more marked by a giving than by a receiving is St. Joseph, and the scene of the fête will be the Home for the Aged, on Tuesday, when the rich may wait on the poor at table and make of the dinner which their charity supplies a really great function.

The crocuses are already several inches above ground, and snow drops are blooming on many a hillside as well as the gardens where their nurture and care are rewarded by early blooms. Spring is here though she will be a bit backward and for.

bashful in asserting herself every day. One sees spring gowns and hats in plenty on fashionable womanhood, and wherever finery is sold or displayed up or down town is sure to be the rendezvous for morning promenaders. If you need other indications that spring is here, the fact that the charities patronized by the local world are all clamoring for funds to replenish their treasuries affords the proof. The attractions offered for your money are in most cases original and interesting, and will present the best efforts of amateurs and professionals. A series of after-Easter weddings is announced, and the probability is strong for one or more international alliances among them.

The amount of private entertaining projected for the spring and June season is entirely problematical at this time, but it is going to start off well with the Easter Sunday breakfast at Friendship. Mr. and Mrs. John R. McLean are already established at their beautiful suburban home, as their city house is completely dismantled and partly thrown down to make way for the new addition and improvements contemplated on the site, and which when completed will give great space for entertaining. The Wadsworth hall at Rauscher's Easter Monday night and the sixtieth couple cotillade at the same place on April 5 are the other leading features of the Easter season.

Mrs. Robert J. Wynne, wife of the consul general to London, wore at her presentation at court at Buckingham Palace March 7 a very elegant dress of white lace with panels of silk, embroidered in gold and edged with bias bands of white velvet. The court train was of spangled gold net edged with a broad band of silk, which had a design of flowers embroidered in chenille silk and gold thread. The embroidery was exquisitely done and was of an original design made for Mrs. Wynne, but excepting this the dress followed a model which was greatly admired. She was worn by a princess at the wedding of the Queen of Spain last year. The consul general and Mrs. Wynne have established themselves as the most hospitable members of London's American colony and had several Americans lately in their house party, who, like themselves, were presented by Ambassador Reid at the second drawing room. Mr. Wynne was also presented at an earlier levee at St. James Palace.

Mrs. Benjamin K. Leon of the Falcon has discontinued her Wednesdays at home.

Miss Estelle Hano entertained delightfully last Sunday evening in honor of Miss Maud Garner of Newport News, Va. A buffet supper was served. Those present were the Misses Garner, Juliet Meyer, Juanita Kaufman, Mabel Kaufman of New York, Elsie Coblenzer and Sadie Eisman, and Messrs. Sydney Gunst, Joe Salomon, Zion Burnstone, Milton Strasburger, J. Ullman of Warrenton, Va.; Joe Baum, Morton Luchs and Dr. Cohen.

Mr. Sydney Haas, who has been attending school in this city, left last week for Norfolk, Va., where he expects to take up his residence.

Mrs. Henry Baum of the Cheltenham entertained at dinner Sunday in honor of the seventy-first anniversary of her birth. Those assembled to commemorate the happy event were her children, grandchildren and out-of-town relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Courtland C. Clements have announced the engagement of their daughter Catherine to Mr. Warren M. Mitchell of this city. The wedding will take place at the latter part of spring.

It is significant of the times that in a description of a new club, the colon for Woman, opened during the past week in New York, it was announced that there were no restrictions against smoking anywhere in the building except in the reading room, but that playing for money is not allowed in the card room. This club is organized on the same lines as a man's club with one exception, and it is not intended therefore for the type of femininity known as the "club woman." The exception noted relates to the wine cellar, which does not yet exist in this club, though a member can keep her own wine stored and use it at will. The building is a spacious one on Madison avenue, convenient to the homes and resorts of most of its wealthy members. Its main entrance is for members only with the other entrance for guests. The large central hall has every comfort and luxury from both a masculine as well as a feminine point of view, as has the reading room opening into it. On the other side of the big central hall is the tea room, from which open the card room and the winter garden. This latter has a green trellised wall, over which ivy clammers. There is a fountain, near which are flower boxes of Italian marble. The dining rooms are on the upper floor and the kitchens are a delight to a housekeeper. The chef is an English woman. There is a small dining room in gray and pink where wonderfully beautiful shades of these colors are combined. A small reception room goes with this suite for private entertaining. The entire front of the house is given up to the assembly room, which will be in demand for conferences on subjects which appeal to womanhood. A club gymnasium, a swimming pool and baths of every kind are other features. Sleeping rooms for out-of-town members are luxuriously fitted up. The initiation fee has been placed at $100, with $100 as annual dues. Out-of-town members pay half the latter sum. Mrs. J. Borden-Harriman is president of the club, and among the officers best known to society in this city are Mrs. John Jacob Astor, second vice president; Mrs. Walter Damroch, secretary; Miss Kate Brice and Mrs. Payne Whitney of the board of governors.

Mrs. McKnight-Moses will be at home in the Highlands on Wednesday, March 20. Mrs. Gaesling, her daughter, and several friends will be with her.

Miss Cassel, daughter of Representative Cassel, is one of the beauties of the congressional circle and a great belle here as at her home.

A children's party was given last Sunday afternoon by Mrs. Benjamin Field in honor of her sons Edwin and Howard. A baby game was played, the prizes being won by Mildred Valenstein and Jerome Kaufman. A delightful repast was served, the table decorations being chickens and tiny eggs. Each guest received a toy chicken as a souvenir of the afternoon.

Lieut. and Mrs. David Harmony Biddle and family left for South Dakota last Tuesday. They have been passing the winter with Mrs. Biddle's grandmother, Mrs. Robert Hare Powell, at her residence in Philadelphia. They expect to go to the Philippines.

Miss Olivia A. Johnson of the Ontario has just returned from New York city, where she paid a visit of two months to Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Hazard.

Mrs. Hoes, wife of Chaplain R. R. Hoes, and her daughter, Mrs. Isaac Bradstock, Pa., who have been visiting Mrs. M. Newmeyer, have gone to Norfolk, Va., where they will be the guests of Mrs. Sigmund's brother, Mr. Dave Goldman.

Miss Moody, sister of Justice Moody, gave the finishing touches to the arrangement of her brother's apartment at the Connecticut when he took possession some week ago. Now she is down in Florida on her usual March visit and will remain some time longer.

Mrs. Ellen Beale Green, daughter of the late Dr. Beale of this city, and Mr. Walter G. Peter were married yesterday afternoon at 2311 18th street, the home of the bride, in presence of their immediate relatives. The brother of the bridegroom, Rev. G. Freeland Peter of this city, officiated. The bride wore an elegant dress of silver gray messaline, with such lace on the bodice, beautiful embroidery and a diamond and emerald ornament, the gift of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Peter left for a honeymoon junket. Upon their return they will live at 2311 18th street, where Mrs.

Peter will receive her friends Thursday, April 11 and 18.

Dr. and Mrs. Pettus entertained a box party Monday evening. Supper was served at their residence after the play. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Grant Watson of the British embassy, Frau Hebbinghaus of the German embassy, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Simpson, Mrs. Robert Hinckley, Admiral Charles Onell and Capt. Nathan Sargent.

Tarpon fishing just now is the sport and a great topic of conversation at Palm Beach. The tarpon is the greatest of all game fish, and therefore the one great desire of all anglers to possess. It weighs something like 150 pounds, and is quick and clever as the trout of northern streams. Mr. Larz Anderson caught a tarpon last Wednesday that weighed 100 pounds.

During her recent visit to Boston Mrs. Nicholas Longworth dined with her grandfather, Mr. George C. Lee of Brookline, at an inn near his home. She wore a tailor gown of dark blue cloth, a black picture hat, white kid gloves, and dark tulle tulle. After dinner Mrs. Longworth and Mr. Lee joined a box party at the theater.

Representative and Mrs. Lamar, who went south after the adjournment, spent last week in Atlanta, visiting the parents of the latter.

The "Washingtonians" will hold their March dance Thursday next. The regular weekly meeting of the club will be held at the home of Miss Appleby tomorrow evening.

The ballroom of Mrs. R. L. Baer of 912 I street was the scene of a children's matinee yesterday, which dances, songs and recitations formed the amusements. A grand march, conducted by Elsie Howe and Margaret Wise, opened the afternoon, and the little ones were led through many movements. The ensemble dance of the Fairies' Roundel presented an attractive sight with all the fairies in green gauze. The song and dance sketches were all very pleasing. The "Kentucky Babe," by Louise Cramer, with a big black pickaninny, causing much merriment. Franklin Theodore Howe, 3d, five years old, gave some lengthy recitations, which were heartily received. Little Elsie, a charmingly dressed, gracefully executed the Jockey Hornpipe, while the minuet, lancers and general ballroom dances showed the knowledge the children have of the terpsichorean art.

At their home, 30 I street northwest, on last Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Hickman entertained the following: Mr. and Mrs. William F. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ecker and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Bragg. Music and singing was enjoyed by all, after which refreshments were served.

Madame Corea, wife of the minister of Nicaragua, held her first at home at the legation yesterday, at which dances, songs and recitations formed the amusements. A lace robe worn over mauve chiffon and made a charming hostess in her daintily appointed home. Minister Corea was present to assist his young bride, and the Mexican ambassador and Madame Creel gave half of a busy afternoon also to entertaining the guests. Mrs. Robert I. Fleming, mother of Madame Corea, and Miss Kearney were vis-a-vis at the refreshment tables in the dining room, which had as a centerpiece a silver loving cup filled with La France roses and narcissus blooms. Madame Corea will again receive next Saturday.

Mrs. Thirkield, wife of Rev. Dr. Thirkield, has just returned from a six weeks' tour of Mexico.

Mrs. Charles G. Dulin, owing to illness in her family, has been prevented from either making or returning calls during the season.

An enjoyable surprise party was given in honor of Miss Madeline Weller, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. F. M. Benjamin, Thursday evening last. Unlike most surprise parties, this one was genuine for Miss Weller, who was completely surprised when guests began to arrive at a fashionable hour. The evening was passed pleasantly with music from the late opera, after which supper was served after a novel fashion. Among those present were the Misses Ruby, Roma and Iola Ricketts; Miss Weller, Miss Tagler, Mrs. F. M. Benjamin, Mrs. L. W. Weller, Mrs. M. G. Benjamin and Mrs. S. C. Benjamin; Messrs. William Woodcock, Horace Smyth, Floyd Casel, Preston Ray, Bernard Cain, Frank Peirce, Roy Richardson, Knorr, Abbot Beach, R. G. Lamb, F. M. Benjamin, M. G. Benjamin and others.
